The Carmel Pine Cone

THE OFFICIAL NEWSPAPER OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, CALIFORNIA

Editor's Column

At last week's town meeting only one person in the audience suggested that surrounding areas should annex to the city in order to keep their appearance "like Carmel."

One cannot help but realize that all speakers against annexation at the same meeting owe a tremendous debt to Carmel's appearance, often preserved at the cost of bitter battles.

If these battles had not been fought . . . and won . . . Carmel might have developed in the honky-tonk style of many once-beautiful seaside communities in California.

But its beauty was preserved and Carmel became a status community.

Residential development, for the most part, on the outskirts of the city followed Carmel's leadership.

Where it failed to follow Carmel's example it is only because the county disregarded Carmel's advice.

I am willing to wager that every speaker against annexation at the meeting, when elsewhere, is proud to say "I live in Carmel!"

But they don't. They live in areas which owe their status to Carmel . . . and Carmel only.

And as Admiral Fisher observed, some of these same residents seem to consider their pocketbooks more important than any unification.

True, it will cost the contiguous areas a little more to become a part of the city. But little of true value is purchased cheaply.

The preservation of Carmel is a very valuable commodity to each and every resident of the contiguous areas. Every slip inside the city will downgrade the status property outside.

It would be wonderful if residents of the outside areas were willing to chip in a little cash and help fight battles to keep Carmelite Zoe Dell West stands on the wing of a plane. Behind her is the poodle that accompanies her on her flights. In the story below Carolyn Elstob tells about the development of the Carmel aviatrix's flying fashion show for women fliers.

Flying Carmelite Takes Aloft A Fashion Show Weighing Only 30 Lbs.

By Carolyn Elstob

Despite the fact that she is a professional flyer, her complexion, undimmed by foundation or powder, is not weather-beaten, nor her uncured brown hair windblown. An experienced and unusual fashion model who MC's her own shows, her wide blue eyes are innocent of pencilled shadow.

Vivacious Zoe Dell West, although she looks to be scarcely out of her teens, was the famous Pirate Girl of the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition a quarter century ago.

This past February she flew to Treasure Island with Wrong Way Corrigan. (Remember him? He started to fly to Albuquerque and landed in Ireland!)

Mr. Corrigan and Mrs. West were greeted by a group of men and women on Treasure Island, all there to remember the great fair that flourished in 1939, also to report on what had happened to each one of them during the years between.

Certainly Zoe Dell West, resident of Carmel for the past year, had a story that could happen only in these mid-twentieth century years, and perhaps, only to her.

Life began for Zoe Dell in the small town of Yamhill, Oregon, named for an Indian tribe, not potatoes, Zoe Dell assured me. In the same town Rose Brown, known to Carmelites as a designer and purveyor of striking fashions and accessories, was al-

Cultural Center Moratorium Is Latest Proposal

The pieces of a gigantic cultural and community center puzzle were placed before Chairman Frank Putnam at a meeting of the Sunset Committee last night.

As chairman of the structures, uses and finances subcommittee reported their findings it became apparent that, as yet, not even the outline of the Sunset picture puzzle was completed. However, each subcommittee had assembled sections which could be fitted in whole once the framework is outlined.

Differences of opinion as to whether or not the outline shall enclose cultural, community and municipal uses caused the puzzle to be left unassembled, and the total picture unclear, at the end of an hour's discussion.

Mrs. William Arley Smith came up with, perhaps, the most constructive contribution towards clarifying the ultimate framework and total picture.

She proposed a moratorium of at least five years in a minority report. During this period present uses should be continued at the school while a full explanation and exploration of financing, design and construction of a truly planned and efficient cultural center is undertaken.

If such a moratorium is approved, "Carmel has a chance to become what it has always pretended to be . . . a center for all the arts," her report ended.

Admiral Fisher's structures subcommittee report contributed assembled information for one section of the puzzle. This report stated that, with minor exceptions, the strength and stability of the Sunset buildings are adequate for several years to come, if used for assembly, teaching, office work and like uses.

However, Sunset auditorium and some of the other public assembly rooms are in immediate need of work to improve health, safety, fire and panic protection.

The auditorium needs a new fireproof grid, safe electric panels and systems including modern stage lighting, proper fly gallery, a fused link smoke vent and an enlarged stage.

The structures subcommittee report, however, advocated the city retain the present Sunset buildings, also the auditorium, if it is structurally and financially possible to repair and modernize it.

Another recommendation of this subcommittee was that, in addition to the auditorium, a modern, multi-purpose flexible concert hall to seat 1,500 persons be built on the Sunset site. Core tests of the concrete foundations under the auditorium were also recommended.

In her minority report, Mrs. Smith took exception to some of these recommendations. She said advising the city to hesitate in demolishing buildings with a remaining useful life was unnecessary. Sentiment to maintain Sunset exactly as it is comes from people who have never been in it and have no knowledge of the conditions and problems, she insisted.

"Sheer madness" was her comment on the addition of a 1,500-

On Friday, Judge Eugene Harrah, sitting in Superior Court, ruled that the Fine Arts Gallery of Carmel should stop holding "public sales." Monday, San Francisco attorneys representing the city and the gallery agreed that closing the business should be postponed until the gallery vs. Carmel case is heard in Federal court in San Francisco next week.

Controversial Items On City Council's Agenda Next Week

The city council will consider several controversial items held over from July 22 at their meeting on Wednesday evening. These matters deal with controls for the development and appearance of Carmel.

A week ago Councilman Gunnar Norberg gave a written report, and Councilman Eben Whittlesey an oral one, on controls to limit the number and size of motels.

Mr. Norberg advocated new controls of 2,000 square feet per unit; also no motel should be allowed to be built within one block or 500 feet, whichever is greater, of another motel.

Mr. Whittlesey was not in accord with these recommendations, although he stated some control of the spread and increase of motels should be considered by the council.

"The motel business is an in-

Town Meeting On Annexation Showed Pro And Con Response To The Idea Equally Divided

Opinion appeared to be almost equally divided on the annexation of nearby unincorporated residential areas to Carmel judging by those who spoke for and against the proposal at the town meeting sponsored by the Carmel Citizens Committee last Friday night.

A show of hands proved that those present were equally split into Carmel residents and people from the surrounding areas.

Following a count of persons from the latter districts, it was revealed that they were divided as follows: Mission Tract, nine; Carmel Point, eight; Walker Tract, seven; Hatton Fields, six; Hatton Fields Mesa and Carmel Woods, five each; Mission Fields, four.

Admiral C. W. Fisher (USN Ret.), president of the citizens committee, stated at the opening of the meeting that the ascertainment of facts was to be the prime purpose of the evening. In order that any question could be answered capably, present at his invitation were City Clerk Hugh Bayless; Medill Bair, superintendent of the Carmel Unified School District; Postmaster Fred Strong; Keith Evans, chairman of both the county and area planning commissions; Police Chief Clyde Klaumann; Fire Chief Robert Smith; representatives from the Carmel Hill state forestry fire station and the sheriff's staff; also members of the Carmel Planning Commis-

No. 66

Relentlessly each hour, each day goes dripping down the drain, and wantonly with wasteful ways we watch the winters wane. We surge ahead to seek the sun until some icy hand strikes suddenly — and who is one to ask or understand?

Then life goes on; each to his task, each bitter heartache veiled; each measure of emotion masked — composure unassailed. So little time is left before the fleeting years are spent, and who can count the caustic score of what our lives have meant?

Who knows what new tomorrows hold? Just so we have today. This day is ours to make or mould, or let it slip away. There may be countless years ahead to consummate our course, but comes a time when these have fled, and mock our vain remorse.

Not one am I to toll the bell depicting dismal doom; but rather that we break the spell and venture while there's room. Live every moment to the hilt, demand to do and dare; the human mind was never built to demonstrate despair.

Apology: Last weekend Fletcher lost a son in a plane crash at Long Beach.

ONLY IN CARMEL

Observed By
Harry Fletcher

Only in Carmel are things so different—not only in matters of scenic beauty, or in distinctive culture, or in just the atmosphere, but more especially in the people—the permanent residents. And this applies to Carmel business, too—the shopkeepers, the professional people, and the various services. Here you find an integrity, a professional pride in trustworthiness, because the business people of Carmel are Carmel residents and an integral part of the true Carmel, and all of them with a lively interest in it, and jealous of any distraction from what has grown over the years into a distinctive atmosphere which can happen "Only in Carmel."

Nor is it necessary to go outside of Carmel for such an important service as how and when to invest surplus funds. Carmel people have friends here in business, the business of reporting on reliable securities for both active and prospective investors. The personnel of Irving Lundborg & Co., which is on Dolores Street, between Sixth and Fifth Avenues, are first of all Carmelites, and well known and respected for their advice on investment matters, and that is why Carmel people avail themselves of this service, knowing that without question, when they have surplus money to invest they can trust Irving Lundborg & Co.'s associates to guide them, which is inimical to life in Carmel—trust and respect between neighbors. Irving Lundborg & Co. was established about 50 years ago, in 1915, has offices in San Francisco and other cities, and is a member of the New York Stock Exchange and other American Exchanges and associations.

People come from all over the world to spend vacations in Carmel, and one distinguished gentleman from London told me he even buys his clothes here. "Time was," he said, "when I thought it necessary to have a tailor on Saville Row and to buy my shirts on Bond Street. But over here I get equal satisfaction by stocking up at Kent of Carmel, where I am not only assured of obtaining authentic fabrics, but also save considerable pounds, shillings, and pence, as it were."

But it isn't only the traveler from abroad who has become an addict of Kent's, because more and more knowledgeable Carmel males are acquiring the habit of going to this popular outfitters on Lincoln Street, between 5th and 6th. Here are the genuine homespun, the authentic Shetland lambs-wool, the sports coats styled for gentlemen, with their slacks, sweaters, shirts, studs, socks, ties and caps, and in fact everything for the man in good taste.

Incidentally I snapped at the chance to enlarge my wardrobe with a wash and wear lightweight seersucker jacket in darcron and cotton for about $26 which, during the last days of this special sale, is actually one-third off the regular price.

I sometimes believe that "only in Carmel" do the local residents enjoy eating out so much, because they are in the know as to where to go for what they want to eat and for what they want to pay. For instance, if they DO NOT like delectable lamb or beef stew they DO NOT go to La Marmite in Carmel Square, which is between Ocean and 7th Avenue on San Carlos Street. I personally like the way they serve these inimitable stews, and the Guylas, in individual covered silver pots in the French manner. You also have a choice of bouillabaisse de poissons, or the petite Marmite, which is a super chicken broth with a whole half chicken, vegetables and all! You also get a peeled tomato salad, plenty of French bread and butter, fresh fruit, assorted cheese, and of course coffee, tea or Sanka. You will love it. The entire dinner is only $3.50.

Sharply at noon, lunch is served at La Marmite (The Pot), and besides the variety of cold meats and salads they have two hot dishes, Guylas (goulash) or the Roulade of Celery (ham stuffed with celery). They'd love to have you drop in for lunch, which is only $1.40. I really go for this, and you will, too.

The shops in Carmel Square (on San Carlos between Ocean and Seventh Avenues) have a great fascination for me. I could spend hours just browsing around the Adam Fox shop, where items of hardware knickknacks, instruments, kitchen gadgets, and what-not intrigue

Carmel Residents Join Fight To Save Del Monte Limited

Next Thursday and Friday another attempt to discontinue passenger train service to the Monterey Peninsula will be made by the Southern Pacific Company.

Starting at 9:30 a.m. on August 6 and 7, in the community room of the Monterey Library, the Interstate Commerce Commission will hold hearings on the matter. The Southern Pacific has been ordered to give reasons why the 75-year-old Del Monte Limited should be abandoned.

Persons speaking in defense of the retention of the train will also be given an opportunity to be heard.

The Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce is making an all-out effort to keep the Del Monte, according to Margi Setchell, chamber manager. She announces that Senator Fred Farr, Assemblyman Alan Pattee and Supervisor Tom Hudson will support the retention of the train. Carmel area members of a chamber committee working to keep the Del Monte are Ansel Adams, Miss Genevieve Genres, Arthur L. Dahl, Professor Otto Heinz and Richard Bennett.

Jeffrey E. Wetmore of Monterey requests that all persons in the Carmel area who want to save the Del Monte either speak at the hearing next week or support an organized effort to save the train.

me no end. And so easy on the pocketbook. And right next door is the John Bolt Morse Gallery, a one-man exhibit of recent paintings, drawings, and sculpture. The creations here are nothing short of fabulously fascinating. Then there is The Unicorn, which specializes in travel gear of more than ordinary interest, to delight the heart of anyone who likes to travel. And for going away to school, how delightful to find just what you need. For those who have a man to please (and who hasn't!) The Him Shop is just the spot to get him the gift he always wanted. And this is the tip-off for those who may be thinking of me for my birthday or for Christmas. Across the patio is India-Burma Imports, where for practically dimes you can get fabrics of exotic charm, besides those marvelous brass ornaments and utilitarian utensils. And be sure to see the variety of place mats. I can't stay out of the place.

Town Meeting On Annexation Showed Pro And Con Response

Admiral Fisher noted that in the audience were Captain Archer Allen, former president of Carmel Unincorporated, and the present president, Thomas K. Perry. Councilman Gunnar Norberg spoke for the city council.

Those who spoke against annexation included Harold C. Arnot, Carmel Point; Carvel Baldwin, Carmel; John Coates, Carmel Woods; and Stanley Oakes, Hatton Fields.

Speakers favoring annexation were Keith Evans (speaking as a resident of the Mission Tract); Earl Moser, Carmel Woods; Leonard Carpenter, Mission Tract; and Mrs. Emory S. Adams, Walker Tract.

Malcolm Steele, Carmel, appeared to dislike any "large sprawled area." Captain Allen, Hatton Fields Mesa, pointed out that unless annexation took place, the areas outside Carmel might tend to form independent cities. Mrs. Josephine Root, Carmel, wondered why anyone would want to be in a city which had unsuccessfully fought free-ways, liquor and motels. She suggested a coalition of all areas in the vicinity to help maintain "individuality."

"A Carmel NATO!" commented Admiral Fisher on this suggestion.

Councilman Norberg stated that the city council favored annexation in answer to a question on this point. He also pointed out the "horrible, monstrous inequity" existing due to city taxpayers being assessed by the county to support police and fire protection and roadwork services for the unincorporated areas.

Admiral Fisher stated that Senator Fred Farr had ascertained that annexation would not mean any change in the form of city government now existing in Carmel. He also said that in his opinion, because of modern desires and unusual pressures, also rising costs of labor and materials, the tax rate in Carmel would continue to go up in proportion to these demands and costs, unless the city discovers some new and novel source of income.

Admiral Fisher noted that annexation discussion during the evening tended to dwell on money.

"I wish more people considered their pocketbooks the least important factor," he declared.

Keith Evans said that framers of both the area and county plans considered eventual future development of this region should be the annexation of unincorporated areas to Carmel. This would prevent a "proliferation of small cities," he indicated.

Other facts ascertained during the evening's discussion were: annexation moves must be initiated by residents of the unincorporated areas; the city council can accept or refuse any annexation proposal; structural fires could best be handled by the city's fire department; the volunteer fireman program would continue following annexation; there would be closer police protection and more men on duty, especially during the night; rural mail delivery would not be discontinued if the unincorporated areas join Carmel.

At the suggestion of Sinclair Kerby-Miller, Carmel, no vote was taken to discover any consensus on annexation at the end of the two-hour discussion.

"People came to protest, not approve," he emphasized.

Susan Aebersold

Susan Carol Aebersold, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Aebersold, who was born September 24, 1952, in Carmel, died of apparent electrocution as she was climbing out of a swimming pool on July 23.

The eleven-year-old girl graduated from Sunset School in June and was to have entered junior high school in September.

At the time of her accidental death Susan was the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. James Speak of Danville. She had been swimming in the family pool with her friend, Carol Speak. It is believed that Susan's wet suit touched an electrical outlet as she climbed out of the water, causing the fatal shock.

In addition to her parents, Susan is survived by a sister, Sandra Lee, and two brothers, John Christopher and Gary, all of Carmel. Her paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. George Aebersold of Coldwater, Michigan.

Private services were held on Saturday in the Dorney and Fralinger Memorial Chapel in Monterey, with Reverend Walter Grumm officiating. Burial took place in Mission Memorial Park, Seaside.

CARMEL FOUNDATION AUGUST ACTIVITIES

Irish tenor Lewis V. Meehan will give a concert at the Carmel Foundation at 3 p.m. on Wednesday. Mr. Meehan will be accompanied by his wife, and the recital will be followed by tea to which everyone interested is invited.

The exhibit of the month, opening Monday, will be a one-man showing of the work of Mrs. Elma Horne, a member of the foundation. Recently arrived in Carmel to make her home here, Mrs. Horne is a member of both Miss Donna Davis's painting class and Clarence Bates's class in landscape painting.

The foundation's monthly luncheon for August will take the form of a trip to Big Sur by bus. Members should make reservations as soon as possible.

SCHOOL BUDGET
The Carmel Unified School District budget on which a public hearing will be held on Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. in the music building at Carmel high school, is printed on page 12 of this issue of the Pine Cone.

Florence Josselyn Visits French Town With Family Name

Returned from two and a half months tour of Europe, Mrs. Talbert Josselyn tells about the high points of her travels in Italy, France, Switzerland, England and Holland.

A day in East Berlin—"We went through Checkpoint Charlie and almost as we stepped on East Berlin soil the difference in the morale of the populace could be felt. They did not appear to be actually unhappy, it might be said they are regimented. There was a great deal of building going on—solid rather than beautiful. We were there for the observance of the anniversary of Hitler's invasion of Russia. Hundreds of Communists gathered in the memorial park to pay tribute to the 7,000 Russian soldiers buried there. We found West Berlin prosperous and actually gay in comparison to the city beyond the Wall.

"Interlaken, Switzerland, fascinated me—the people, the architecture and the natural beauty. And we went to the summit of the Jungfrau, an unforgettable adventure. Halfway up we changed from the little railway cars to cogwheel conveyances. The fields of glittering ice were almost too dazzling! I don't know how deep the ice was, but it was solid—everywhere we looked—and I really felt that we were on top of the world."

Mrs. Josselyn found the art galleries in each country an overwhelming experience.

"As tourists from California we were invariably treated with friendly cordiality. In Italy, more than any other nation, we did hear some talk of inflation and strained economy. But on the whole the atmosphere was optimistic.

In Paris, Mrs. Josselyn bought a car and, with friends, drove through Normandy and Brittany. "It was in Brittany that we visited the tiny town of Josselyn. The family chateau, dating back hundreds of years still stands, and it was there that the Josselyn family, so far as we can trace the family tree, had its beginnings.

"The hamlet is indeed picturesque. Its winding streets are lined with trees. The laundresses still wash and beat their clothes in the river. It must be the Loire or one of its tributaries that flows through Josselyn. We also visited Mont St. Michel, but, unfortunately, it was hidden by fog," she reports.

Mrs. Josselyn found her two-and-a-half-month trip all too short, but, back in Carmel, she rejoiced at some local "changes" and sighed over others.

In congratulating the Pine Cone upon the return of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cook as owners-publishers, Mrs. Josselyn stressed the role of the local newspaper as the voice of the citizens.

"Right or wrong, Carmelites' views are worthy of publication and I, for one, feel that The Pine Cone is doing, and will continue to do, that job," she said.

Small and large printing orders are quickly filled at The Pine Cone Press. Dial Carmel MA 4-3881.

President's Plane A Responsibility Of Local Couple's Son

Colonel Harlan C. Wilder, 45, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cree Wilder of Carmel, has been named to command the Military Air Transport Service (MATS) 1254th Air Transport Wing, which provides air transportation for the President and other government officials, General Howell M. Estes, Jr., MATS commander, announces.

A veteran of over 7,000 flying hours, Colonel Wilder was chief pilot at MATS headquarters, Scott AFB, Ill., before his last assignment as commander of the Atlantic Air Rescue Center in Germany.

He will assume his new responsibilities on August 8. Located at Andrews AFB, Maryland, the 1254th operates the four Boeing VC-137 four-engined jets used by the President and other high government officials, plus a variety of other special air mission aircraft.

Colonel Wilder has been in the Air Force for more than 22 years, serving in Alaska and Europe as a pilot and squadron commander during World War II.

Town House Subject Of Magazine Story

Carmel Foundation's Town House program is the subject of an article in the August issue of Catholic Digest, a magazine printed in Indiana for national circulation.

Author of the four-page story on the work done by the foundation for Carmel's senior citizens is Stanley S. Jacobs.

There are accounts in the article of the Town House "meals on wheels" program and other services undertaken by Carmel Foundation, also thumbnail profiles of Mrs. Ruth Sarett, Town House director, and her assistant, Mrs. Keith S. Messent.

The history of the founding of Carmel Foundation and the establishment of Town House are also described as well as the financial aid given the project started in 1950, including the $100,000 left to the foundation by the late Miss Elizabeth Niles, librarian at Harrison Memorial Library for many years.

"Personal service is the basis of the foundation's success in making older people feel needed. No task is too hard for the staff," Mr. Jacobs writes about the work at Carmel Foundation Town House.

ANSEL ADAMS CO-AUTHOR OF BOOK ON HAWAII

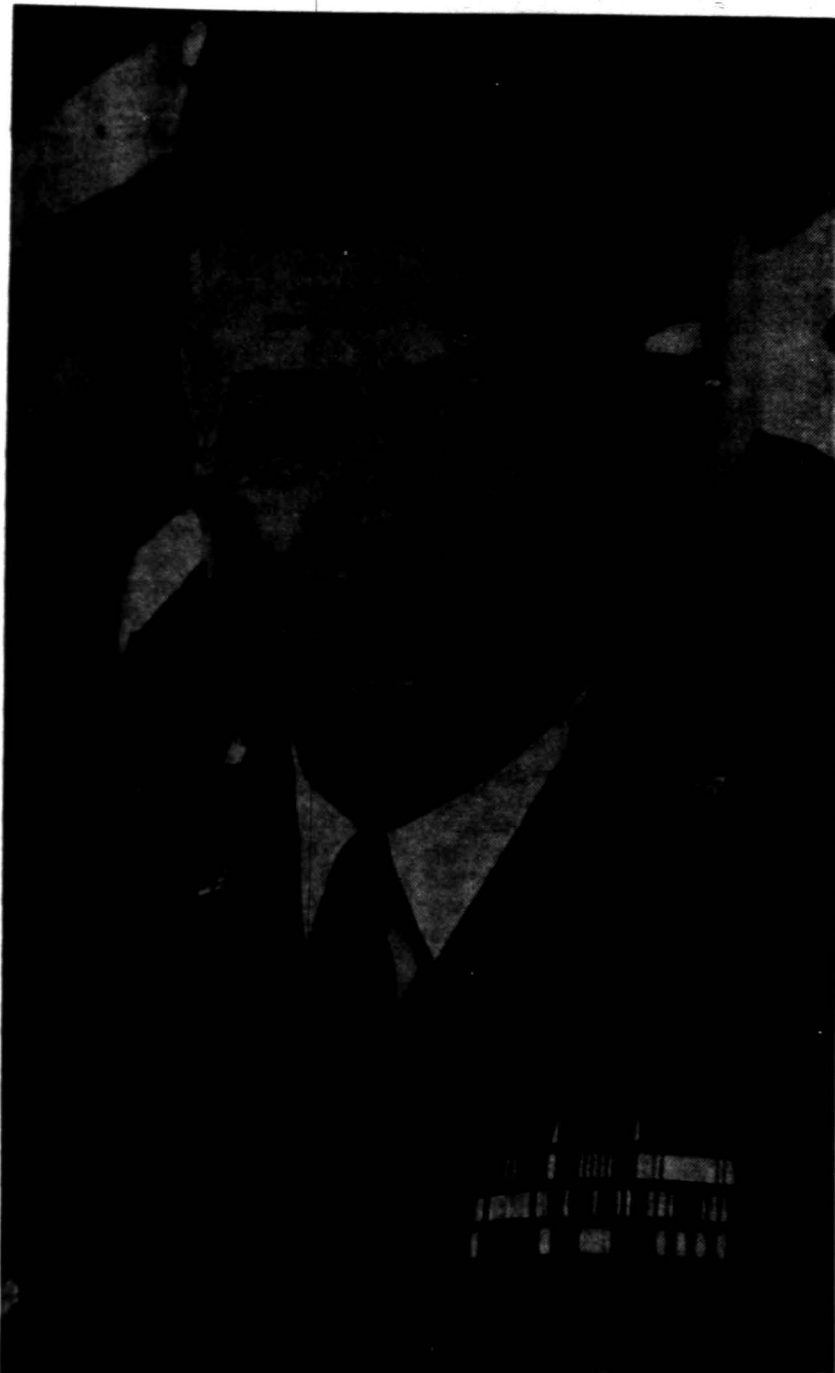

"An Introduction to Hawaii," with text by Edward Joesting and photographs by Ansel Adams of Carmel Highlands was published last week by Five Associates for distribution by the Sierra Club.

Mr. Joesting traces the history of the Hawaiian Islands for the past 15,000 years in his 50,000-word text. Mr. Adams illustrates the book with 69 plates, 16 of them in color.

In addition, Ansel Adams has included a detailed guide to photography in the Hawaiian Islands with sections on equipment, film, filters, lighting conditions, and photography in color and black and white with Polaroid equipment.

The photographs in this book were taken on four trips to Hawaii.

Small and large printing orders are quickly filled at The Pine Cone Press. Dial Carmel MA 4-3881.

Brigadier General Frank J. Caulfield (above), deputy commanding general of Fort Ord, will retire tomorrow after 30 years of honorable service to his country.

He will be honored with a full scale review in which more than 4,000 troops will participate and will receive an 11-cannon salute.

General Caulfield came to Fort Ord in 1961 after being assistant commandant of the U.S. Army intelligence school at Fort Holabird where he had been stationed since returning from Europe in 1958.

A 1934 graduate of West Point, the general has served as military aide to the Governor of Puerto Rico, troop movement officer in the Normandy invasion, military attache to Spain, intelligence officer in London, and commander of the 2nd Battle Group, 7th Infantry, in Germany.

He holds the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star Medal, Army Commendation Medal and the Croix de Guerre of the Luxembourg government in addition to other awards and decorations.

TUESDAY EVENING
CONCERT
JULY 21

Tuesday night's concert opened with the "Sonata for Trumpet and Strings," a work of the short-lived genius Henry Purcell. This composer is highly responsible for the development of instrumental music. In the allegro movements, Edward Haug fancifully and tastefully put everyone at ease with his trumpet making the performance very delightful.

Plaudits here and now for Mr. Haug! His diligent and continued additions of musical talent are most valuable to the festival. Orchestra members deserve equal plaudits.

The orchestra sat back to relax as Miss Eudice Schapiro played "Partita for Violin Solo Violin No. 1, in B Minor." I do hope that this musician is able to return again soon and often to the festival. Extraordinary dynamic artistry flows from the hand, the bow and violin of Miss Schapiro . . . and she was so proud to be able to participate co. She and General Caulfield and their daughters, Caroline, 11, and Catherine, 15, will live in Hatton Fields. Their son Lieutenant Frank Caulfield, Jr., a 1961 graduate of West Point, is on overseas duty in Germany.

Next, in the Bach's Cantata No. 82, which longingly expresses his intimate feeling for religion, as well as the full meaning of the text, towering Norman Farrow excelled as he demonstrated his unequalled appreciation of the beautiful composition. "Schlummert ein" — asked the eyes to close with a beautiful lullaby. Orchestra members added nothing but nobility to his singing and to the flute of celestial quality played by Ray Duste. The exuberance of the finale aria enlivened the thought of death, beautifully so!

The performance of Cantata No. 82 was an excellent example of Conductor Sandor Salgo's careful direction and following of musical phrasing. This is a very difficult task as very few phrasing marks are to be found in most of the cantatas. Bach failed to add these as he himself would perform them knowing well what he wanted, and somehow was confident that others would know what he wanted also. However this is not always the case, I believe both players and conductor followed Salgo's directions—thus realized Bach's wishes in Carmel.

One of the world's still most underated composers is Franz Josef Haydn. From the pen of this man came the final number.

ber of the evening's program. Certainly a favorite of many, and I believe in a very special way of Maestro Salgo, is Haydn's Symphony No. 97 in C major. The introduction adagio was given to the woodwind and the string sections, later closed with a full orchestral movement on the theme. The vivace followed—a trifle more bold at times. The menueto in its allegro form was at first a bit fuzzy and unclear in the violin section, but this later was solved as the orchestra repeated the movement as an encore. The finale gave Haydn the seldom but much deserved praise, which he merits. In an animated fashion the orchestra closed the fifth concert of the 27th annual Bach Festival.

CONCERT AT CARMEL MISSION JULY 22

The soft-glowing lights, luminarias, greeted the late evening concertgoer last week as "The Great Service" of William Byrd was presented at Carmel Mission Basilica.

I would like, very much, to report that a hushed audience awaited the fine, magnificent musical offering. However I cannot!

Somehow the setting was perfectly prepared with great care, but the solemn silence that should have preceded the concert was not. I found this most distracting!

"O Come" followed the grand entrance procession with banners, torches and the rich red-robed festival chorale. The festival orchestra members were awaiting them.

The antiphonal sections in the "We praise Thee, O God" were prompt in response and the motet technique was applied with great felicity. Priscilla Salgo directed the cantors aloft in the choir. And so a most important phase of English church music, imbued with the grandeur of polyphony, was presented.

Singing the descant, soloists that sang the additional counterpoint above the plain song, were Katharine Schlinger, soprano I; Laverne Smart, soprano II; Jennifer Chase, alto I; Carole Burch, alto II; William Lee, tenor I; Robert Olson, tenor II; Richard Golden, bass I; and Herbert Cabral, bass II.

The cantors included Lois Utterbach, soprano I; Sue Hinshaw, soprano II; Lois Varga, alto I; Inga Tarshis, alto II; Tommy Golee, tenor I; Arthur Holcomb, tenor II; Milton Williams, bass I; and William Feuerstein, bass II.

This very effective madrigal-type song calls for very special forces as the counterpoint may begin with parallel motion, then cross one another, then continue in an oblique direction. In this way Byrd created rich and fantastic play of pattern ornamentations.

In the "Blessed," or Cantic of Zachary, about two-thirds was cut. This very abbreviated version was disappointing for

I would have loved to hear more of it. I add, abbreviation of both the Byrd and the Handel were necessary and Maestro Salgo had to make the decision. It was made!

The "Lord have mercy upon us" was also brief—so written by Byrd. All of the Creed was sung in a rapid pace where Byrd makes use of Archbishop's Cranmer's request for brevity theory of single note per word and syllables.

"My soul doth magnify the Lord" movingly continued smoothly and ended with a four-fold amen. The "Now depart" introduced the final phase. However I do not believe this was the exact order for this same section was again repeated at the close of the concert.

The Handel "Dettingen Te Deum" was next. The opening choruses and fanfare were passages with full impact. Maximum effect was realized with complete orchestral support. Brass instruments are to be commended.

Single vocal offerings of great merit were those of Alto Pauline Law and Bass Milton Williams.

I must mention the unintentional action of a young acolyte that almost ruined the wonderful performance. Nonetheless the festival chorale was sealed as supernumerary.

HANDEL ORATORIO, JULY 24

The performance of Handel's oratorio, "L'Allegro ed il Penseroso," reached heights of unequalled musical triumph. It gave us the opportunity to hear a mood setting offering by Handel. All was without fault!

Returning were Carole Bogard, soprano; Carolyn Stanford, mezzo-soprano; and Evelyn Sachs, alto. Nothing but praise is due to Richard Cramer, tenor, who excelled and was most concise. The Misses Stanford, Sachs, and Bogard were tremendous.

The newcomers that did superbly were Kay Shipley, soprano, and Archie Drake, bass. I, myself, think that the Handel oratorio was one of the brightest moments of the entire Bach Festival of 1964.

Miss Shipley must return! What a graceful, beautiful voice.

No doubt Maestro Salgo recognizes this! Miss Shipley was ill during the major part of the week. How wonderful that she was able to return for the Handel!

Mr. Drake's, "If I give thee honour due" and "Mirth, admit me of thy crew" allowed this newcomer ample opportunity to express depth and beauty with a polished finesse. To all of the six soloists, my compliments.

Additional verse should be printed in the program to aid the listener in the Milton-Jennens text, however.

The principals involved were most sympathetic as well as uplifting in their melodies. The entire orchestra, chorus, soloists and Maestro Salgo and his beautiful wife, Priscilla Salgo, also Kenneth Ahrens, all merited the second standing ovation.

SYMPOSIUM, JULY 24

Alexander Fried, Professors Randall and Whitaker discussed "L'Allegro ed il Penseroso" for interested listeners at the symposium held at All Saints' Parish Hall the morning of the performance. The interpretation was discussed and shed light on what Milton and Handel had attempted to project. It was a very interesting session and I wonder if the recording used at the symposium is the recording that so many of the soloists were eager to obtain before the evening's presentation?

There was one recording that belonged to an individual which was very much in demand. I think this was funny! There are many other humorous aspects to the Bach Festival that merit publication. They indicate "Old Bach" must have had many funny moments in his performances also.

STERNE RECITAL, JULY 18

All Saints' Parish Hall was filled to capacity for the July 18 morning recital. The audience was hushed as Colin and Roberta Sterne offered Couperin's light but pleasing tone-pictured, "Retrato dell' Amore." Couperin was responsible for many attractive additions to the French school of harpsichord. The talented Sternes displayed a remarkably polished skill almost effortlessly.

Richard Golden, baritone, appeared along with the Sternes in several songs of "Shakespeare's England" by John Dowland. In the first performance, I believe, this young man offered very little, but I am happy to say that in the repeat recital much more flexibility and a more whole tone was heard throughout. This distinctiveness was lacking in the first recital. Golden, a newcomer to the Bach Festival, appeared as soloist and chorale member. Miss Hazelle Miloradovitch completed this very fine small group playing a favorite instrument of the Renaissance—the viola da gamba.

KENDALL LECTURE, JULY 20

An overflow crowd of listeners awaited the fine repeat performance.

Bach's influence on subsequent generations was discussed on July 20, by Raymond Kendall, dean of the school of music at the University of Southern California. Dr. Kendall stated that Johann Sebastian Bach's relative obscurity was due to the later musical success of his sons.

In all, the discussion included proof that Bach did not remain obscure and that his influence was great on Mozart, Beethoven, Brahms, Mendelssohn and Schumann, but not on Berlioz who dared call Bach "a stupid man."

Bach Festival Reviews . . .

Church of the Wayfarer were very disappointing to this reviewer. Not because of the virtuoso, but because of the inadequate instrument and the housing of such. Altman always programs very interestingly and at the first recital he was joined by James Schwabacher, tenor, singing songs from "The Notebook for Anna Magdalena" by Bach. "Bit du bei mir," left nothing to be desired.

The second recital included works of the noted French organist-composers, Titeclouze, Francois and Louis Couperin, Marchand and d'Aquin. Altman closed with Bach's deathbed dictation.

In the future it would be a marvelous addition and certainly a belated one at that, to consider the purchase of a fine organ and if properly housed it would allow the fine abilities of Ludwig Altman to no longer be encumbered by the existing conditions.

BOGAS RECITAL, JULY 21

The young pianist, Ray Bogas, held his recital on Tuesday at the Parish Hall of All Saints. Two partitas of the Cothen period gave Bogas opportunity to interpret Bach with plenty of thrust, accent and color. The second selection was by Haydn, the "Sonata in C major." A clear "classical" style of the creative activity of Haydn came forth and was rewarded with gracious applause.

SCHUSTER-LINSLEY RECITAL, JULY 22

Joseph Schuster, cellist, and Ralph Linsley at the piano joined one another at the Wednesday recital. Mr. Schuster was in fine form as before on the stage at Sunset auditorium. Outstanding here was the "Suite in C major for cello solo," by Bach.

CHAMBER MUSIC CONCERT JULY 24

The final recital at All Saints Parish Hall found the greatest number of festival participants both in the program and in the audience. Maestro Salgo was able to attend as Schwabacher sang the "Songs of Thomas Morley" with great flourish, light, and grace typical of the tuneful Morley art.

Orchestra members excelled in the "Quintet in D major" by J. C. Bach. This group of fine musicians included Louise Di Tullio, flute; Raymond Duste, oboe; Charles Meacham, violin-concertmaster; Ellen Dessler, cello; Ralph Linsley, harpsichord. These are all outstanding Bach Festival musicians and we are all indebted to them for their artistic contributions.

James Schwabacher returned with French songs of the 17th and 18th centuries. All were done rather well but the outstanding and more inspiring was Monteverdi's "Duets." Schwabacher was joined by Tommy Golecke. Unison was clear and the harmonies, as the Italian school demanded, were colorfully presented. Other artists joining the group were second violinist John Loban and cellist Carolyn Jo Funk.

REPEAT PROGRAMS JULY 24, 25, 26

The repeat performances of the Carmel Bach Festival of 1964 were filled to capacity and, I believe, in every way equal to the previous week's performances, in some cases, allowed an added opportunity for some of the artists to improve on previous attempts. For Richard Golden in his recital—for Patrick Daugherty in the Mozart—congratulations gentlemen!

Changes in the Bach "B Minor" were met with the now expected and dependable interpretations of Miss Pauline Law, alto; Archie Drake, baritone; and Orville White, bass. Miss Law added a forcefulness with great confidence as she projected her beautiful voice in splendid form.

A third standing ovation followed.

And so Maestro Salgo said, "the best yet." Yes, how true. Another Bach Festival outstandingly held once again. What would we do without this fine and devoted conductor and musical director? Without each of the individual soloists, instrumentalists and chorus members? And what would we do without Carmel and its fine festival officers, directors, committee and staff?

STILLWATER MERCURY RACING RESULTS

The final races of the Summer Mercury Series were held by the Stillwater Yacht Club Sunday. Eleven-year-old Evan Wythe, skipper of boat No. 242, tied with Mark Raggett for first place. Since Evan had won two races and Mark Raggett only one, Evan was given the honor of being the winner of the series with Mark Raggett second, Jon Raggett, third, and Dick Catlin, fourth.

Others finished in this order: Tom Perry, 5th; A. J. Cook, 6th; George Yates, 7th; Steve Gould, 8th; Van Yates tied with Larry Washburn, 9th; Frank Bray, 10th; Dick Clark, 11th; Jack Gilbert, 12th; and Mrs. Charlotte Clark, 13th.

The first race of the championship series will be held August 9.

Carmel Architect Wins Rotch Award For Cultural Center

Frank Gary McCurdy, head of the design staff of the firm of Wallace Holm and Associates, has been awarded second place in the 1964 Rotch Travelling Scholarship, an international design competition administered by the Boston Society of Architects.

McCurdy is a registered architect in Pennsylvania where he was a design associate with the firm of Howard, Burt and Hill until he joined the design staff of Hugh Stubbins in Boston. Since joining the Holm firm last winter, he has designed new facilities for the First Baptist Church of Pacific Grove, the controversial All Saints' Day School in Carmel Valley, a team-teaching elementary school for Marina and the new Monterey County Civic center. He holds a bachelor of architecture degree from Carnegie Institute of Technology and master of architecture and urban design from Harvard University.

The Rotch Competition is a two-stage program. The first stage is open to all qualified architects throughout the world. (Last year's winner was from Sweden). The problem was the design of a pavilion for the World's Fair in New York. From this preliminary competition six finalists were chosen to compete in the second stage.

The second stage or final competition was of special interest to Mr. McCurdy in view of Carmel's recent purchase of the Sunset School site. The problem was the design of a cultural center for music, drama, painting, sculpture and dance. It was to be a community center of activity and attention rather than the traditional "museum" concept of a cultural center. To accomplish this Mr. McCurdy interjected a "Carmel idiom" — that is commercial shops and restaurants interspersed with the studios common exhibit and dining areas.

Symphony Conductor On Eastern Trip

John Gosling, conductor of the Monterey County Symphony, will take the proverbial busman's holiday this summer by participating in two workshop sessions for conductors as well as attending three important summer music festivals.

A participant in the recent conductors workshop presented at Asilomar under the auspices of the American Symphony Orchestra League, Mr. Gosling will also take part in its East Coast counterpart at Orkney Springs, Virginia.

Prior to the three-week session in Virginia, scheduled for August, he will visit the Aspen, Ravinia and Berkshire festivals.

Mr. Gosling will confer with music notables at each of the three festivals. While at Aspen he will consult with pianist Grant Johannesen concerning the latter's appearances with the Monterey County Symphony next year.

Mr. Gosling will return to Carmel early in September to begin orchestra rehearsals for the 1964-65 season.

The Sur Coast

By ELIZABETH FULLER JONES

NEPENTHE, the famed Sur Coast restaurant and gathering place in Big Sur, opens a gift and gourmet shop Saturday in a handsome new structure situated on the rugged coastal slopes of the Santa Lucias just below the terrace of the older establishment.

The new building, which has attracted much attention and comment during the many months of construction is, like the original Nepenthe, far greater than originally visualized. Architects Hall and Goodhue of Monterey have worked closely with the owners, Mr. and Mrs. William Fassett, (Bill and Lolly as they are known to their countless friends and neighbors) in the design of this new addition to make it one that will withstand the elements, the torrential rains of winter, the steady, strong seasonal winds and the constant saturation of salt-filled sea air.

"It is a building formed to meet the feeling of the mountains and the sea," says Bill Fassett, "it might be called a tapestry of Big Sur." Woven into it is the work and thought of many artists and artisans of the community. The materials, too, are indigenous.

Like the original Nepenthe, built 15 years ago, the new three-level structure had as general contractors, the Trotter brothers, Frank and Walter.

One notes immediately, on the exterior and the interior, the heavy seasoned beams and supports used throughout. These are old bridge timbers removed from various spans along Highway One, spans that have been replaced with pre-stressed concrete. Putting these in place presented a problem but it was easily solved by Frank Trotter's ingenuity, which appeared in the form of a "home-made" carrying cart and crane.

Working together with the Trotters on the interesting project was Joe Kingswold of Krinkles Korner who is completing cabinet and plaster work. Horst Mayer, a photographer by profession, has assisted greatly in finish work details. Tom Sawyer and Hilton Riley have given of their talents. Rock walls and terraces are by Gordon Newell and Edmund Kara is working now on layout and construction of walkways. (Kara is the artist who has formed a great Phoenix bird from a mammoth redwood burl which is now prominently displayed in the yard of his home near Nepenthe, and is in process of working a figure of Moses in another redwood burl.)

The gift and gourmet shops, which open August 1, are located on the middle level of the building. The top level is all deck and the lower floor will be for plants, storage, etc. These two areas are in stages of completion.

Gifts and foods from around the world will be available in the shops, which will be open every day, all year. Handcrafts from Big Sur artists will be displayed and an unusual collection of antique jewelry.

"This is in no sense just a curio shop," the owners say, "but rather an out-of-the-ordinary collection of well-chosen items."

It is interesting to this correspondent to note that the ever increasing popularity which Nepenthe seems to enjoy through friends telling friends about it and by the publicity which it has received through various media such as the New York Times, the Saturday Evening Post, Architectural Forum, Flair Magazine, Holiday and Town and Country.

Close to the new building and the enlarged activities at Nepenthe is Manager George Dawson. He has been an active, interested member of the organization since the first of this year.

Mr. Dawson is a native Californian and his love and enthusiasm for the Big Sur area is very evident. He is a graduate of the Parsons School of Design in New York, and received his B.A. in business administration at the University of St. Mary's in San Antonio, Texas. For five years he had his own interior design studio in New York, called "Designs For Living," and for a period was set designer at the Pasadena Playhouse in Southern California. More recently Mr. Dawson had a business in San Francisco specializing in imported antique jewelry.

Golf Professionals For Three Local Courses Announced

The head and assistant golf professionals for the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club, also the professional for the new golf course under construction in Del Monte Forest, and a new professional for Del Monte Golf Course were announced this week.

The directors of the new Valley club have appointed Art Bell as head professional. He has been nationally known for the past 35 years as an outstanding teacher. For 18 years, Mr. Bell was the professional at the California Golf Club in San Francisco and for five years before that at the San Francisco Golf Club.

Art Bell began his career as a pro at Waialae Country Club in Honolulu. He has recently been admitted to the California golf writers' Hall of Fame. Twice a winner of the Bing Crosby tournament, he has played in the Masters' three times and won every sectional title in California.

Mr. Bell will take over his duties as head pro at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club on September 1. His assistant will be Ray Ricketts of the Del Paso Country Club in Sacramento.

Frank Thacker of Carmel Valley, who has been the professional at the Del Monte Golf Course since 1956, has been named pro at the new course being built in Del Monte Forest between Cypress Point and the Monterey Peninsula Country clubs. This 18-hole course, being designed by R. Trent Jones, will open late in 1965.

Nick Lombardo of Fresno will take over as pro and general manager of Del Monte golf course on September 1. He began his golf career at Oak Lawn, Illinois, where he was assistant professional and manager of the Hickory Golf Course for four years.

Mr. Lombardo next was a teaching professional at the Country Club of Detroit, Grosse Point Farms, Michigan, for a year.

He designed and constructed the first nine holes of the Kings River Golf and Country Club in Kingsburg, California and was the pro and manager of this course for two years.

Mr. Lombardo will come here from the Flg Garden Golf Course in Fresno. He owns, designed and constructed this course. His wife and two children will come with him to live on the Peninsula.

"Dark Of The Moon" Closes August 2

The current run of "Dark of the Moon" at the Golden Bough Circle Theatre must come to an end on August 2, due to the departure of some of its cast members, who are students in the first of two summer workshop sessions now being held here by Fresno State College. The popular folk fantasy will have had a run of only three weeks.

It will be replaced on August 7 by another workshop production, "Time of Your Life," by William Saroyan. A five-week-end run can be managed for the Saroyan play before the students leave for home on Labor Day.

The Circle will return to its normal seven-week schedule of changing plays when Shakespeare's "The Tempest" opens on September 11. It will play on weekends only through October 25.

Visitors from Hanford

The Louis Maccagnos of Hanford, with their daughter, Kathleen, have taken a house in Carmel for the summer.

Golden Wedding

Judge and Mrs. George P. Ross, who are now living in Oregon, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on July 20.

Judge Ross presided over Carmel's city court for 16 years before it was combined with the municipal court in Monterey. Last October, he and Mrs. Ross became residents of Capital Manor in Salem. They have a penthouse apartment overlooking the Willamette River on top of the ten-story retirement residence and "just love it," Mrs. Ross reports.

During his college years, Judge Ross won four boxing titles—special, light, bantam and featherweight. He helped pay his way through Stanford, also Stanford law school, by playing in a band and was cornetist for the university band. It was while playing in a band at a Fourth of July celebration in Susanville that he met Mrs. Ross.

Fishing in Oregon

All Saints' Episcopal Church organist Robert Forbes took off yesterday with his two young sons, Ralph and Ted, loaded with camping and fishing equipment. In Oregon, they will try their skill with the rod and line. Also, they will visit the Jim Burkholders, for many years popular residents of Carmel, in Bend. The three Burkholder children, Bob Forbes tells, are all talented musicians and the plan is to make the rafters ring. The three fishermen will go on to Feather River, planning to return to Carmel early next week.

Renee Studying Drama

The lone Carmelite attending the summer sessions at the White Oaks Theatre training center in Carmel Valley, ballet dancer and actress Renee Wurzmans is triumphantly carrying out a crowded and varied schedule. Following her appearance on the White Oaks Theatre stage in their opening play of the season, "The Boy Friend," she is currently playing a major role in "Rumpelstiltskin" presented primarily for children, and is also adding to the fun of the weekend performances of "Three Penny Opera." Primarily a student of ballet, Renee, daughter of the Fritz Wurzmans, is proving her ability as an actress.

Off to Switzerland

Tenor James (Jimmy) Schwabacher, festival favorite through 14 seasons, was the house guest of Lee Crowe in Carmel Valley during the fortnight of the 27th annual Bach Festival. Jimmy flew to San Francisco on Monday to emplane for Switzerland where he will be guest soloist in the mid-summer opening concert of the famed Radio Symphony Orchestra of Zurich.

Ends Training

Gregory D. Potiris, the son of Mrs. Bessie Nevis of Carmel Meadows, graduated this month from recruit training at the Naval Training Center in San Diego.

New A.F.A. Directors

New members of the board of directors of the Monterey Peninsula chapter of the American Federation of Arts are Mrs. Richard Osborne, Mrs. Shreve Archer Jr., James A. Smith and Charles Simpson.

Guests of the Morses

Mr. and Mrs. S. F. B. Morse gave a dinner on Saturday evening in honor of the Duke and Duchess of Manchester who were their weekend guests.

On Monday, Admiral and Mrs. Arthur W. Radford of Washington, D.C., arrived in Pebble Beach to spend a few days with the Morses.

A Visiting Grandmother

Mrs. Dorothy von Meier, chairman of the Carmel Planning Commission, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. Carroll McKenney (Kathie von Meier) in Castro Valley. She's having a grand time and states that "a visiting grandmother is apt to live longer than one visited!"

New Assistant Manager

Wendell L. Putt has been named assistant manager of the Carmel branch of the Bank of America, according to August H. Johnson, manager.

Mr. Putt joined the Bank of America in 1954 in Albany and later worked in branches in Berkeley before moving to the bank's administration operations department in San Francisco in 1960.

He is a graduate of Florida Southern College and served in the U.S. Army during World War II and the Korean conflict.

His wife, Esther, and their son Joseph, five years old, will come to Carmel, too.

Ahoy, Port Captain

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fields, former local residents, with their sons Earl, Jr., and Ed, sailed into Stillwater Cove on Saturday in their 30-foot ketch and experienced the warm hospitality of the Stillwater Yacht Club. The Fields were entertained on Sunday by the K. H. Holbrooks of Birch Place, before setting sail for the Elkhorn Yacht Club. Earl Fields is port captain of the Cayote Point Yacht Club of San Mateo. The family now make their home in Los Altos.

Joins Navy

Ronald F. Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Adams, has reported for recruit training at the Naval Training Center in San Diego.

Visitors From Hawaii

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Murakami with their daughter Shirlene, a student at Fullerton Junior College, were recent house guests of Professor and Mrs. Kyung Cho Chung of South Carmel Hills. Mrs. Murakami is Mrs. Chung's sister. The Murakamis live in Hawaii.

Ralph Linsley Leaves

Harpist - pianist Ralph Linsley, the musician at the hub of the Carmel Bach Festival (he has appeared in every festival but one), stopped in the Pine Cone editorial offices to say goodbye on Monday. "I'll accompany Nan Merriman in her concert in Redlands Bowl on Friday," he told us. "She has just returned from a European tour... Early in October we will go to Alaska where her series of concerts will keep us for some time." The 1963 Carmel Festival was dedicated to Ralph (it was his 25th). A brilliant musician, despite his heavy schedule of concerts, he devotes many months throughout the calendar year to the building of the Carmel Bach Festival program.

Six Trophies

Mr. and Mrs. Art Carpenter showed their Hungarian Lizsla at the Santa Barbara and Ventura Dog Shows on Saturday and Sunday and came home in surprised triumph—with six trophies. "Besa" sired by the Carpenter's champion, "Sandor von Debreztin" was named best of breed on two successive days by two different judges. In classes she was awarded 15 points at Ventura and 21 at Santa Barbara.

A son of "Sandor," shown at Ventura by his owner, Dr. Will Carpenter of Pebble Beach, was named Winner's Dog.

Rendezvous in Mexico

Mrs. Valentine Miller and her younger daughter, Janie, left by plane for Guadalajara on Sunday. At the airport of the Mexican city they expected to meet Mrs. Miller's sons, Nicholas and Andrew, and her daughter, Allison, also Tasha Doner. The four young people left a week or so before the plane travelers to drive to the Grand Canyon and then down the west coast of Mexico. Together the Miller family and Tasha will spend several weeks in a cottage in Ajijic on the shores of Lake Chapala.

Reverend Vit Back

The Reverend Karel V. Vit was welcomed home at a potluck dinner Sunday evening given by members of the Church in the Round. The church's minister has been away for two months visiting Austria, Switzerland, Denmark and Germany.

Convention Delegates

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Goetz of Palo Colorado Canyon were delegates last weekend to a four-day district convention of Jehovah's Witnesses at the San Jose Fairgrounds.

MCID Directors

George C. Bestor of Carmel and Richard Bennett of Pebble Beach are members of the Monterey County Industrial Development board of directors for the 1964-65 fiscal year. Mr. Bennett is also a member of the executive committee and chairman of the public relations committee of the organization which seeks to attract industries to the county.

Bray Parties

A party by and in the Carmel Valley pool celebrated the eighth birthday of Mary Fielding, daughter of Mrs. Rutledge Bray on Saturday afternoon. Among the guests who appeared in high fashion swim suits were, Susan and Alison Work, Mary's cousins; also Juanita Fenton, Diana Giusi and Lisette Glaser. The young ladies changed into frilly party dresses for the drive to the Bray home where the birthday cake and ice cream were served.

Recovered from the excitement of young Mary's great day, the Rutledge Brays entertained a group of friends for cocktails on Sunday afternoon.

Circle Theatre's 'Dark Of The Moon' Magic Blend Of Poetry, Mythology

The Fresno State College Theatre Workshop, back again at the Circle Theatre, has rivalled its best in this summer's production, "Dark of the Moon."

Based upon one of the rarer versions of the Smoky Mountain folk song, "Barbara Allen" the play might be termed a ballet in prose.

As enacted by 26 men and women, serious students of theatre, the play at the Circle is a magic blend of poetry, music and mythology. Director Charles Randall has emphasized, with delicate humor, the naivete of the Smoky Mountain characters. There are many moments of comedy throughout the evening, but this reviewer found the laughter tinged with poignancy.

The tale of John, the bewitched eagle boy (Terry Poland) and his love for the fair Barbara Allen (Nancy Boelsen) is a tragic story. The young lovers are surrounded by creatures of darkness, their defeat is inevitable.

Through two acts and nine scenes, two fine musicians, Joe Broadman, guitarist, and Keith Nelson, banjoist, croon and strum the sequences, while conjurers, witches and simple human folk be-devil Barbara and her John. Miss Boelsen and Mr. Poland are superb in the challenging leading roles. Certainly sharing top honors is Carmel's Paul Ransom as Preacher Haggler. More than benevolent, a rabble-rouser-for-the-Lord, hymn-shouting old-time religionist Preacher Haggler is an unforgettable character as Mr. Ransom presents him.

As the Conjur Man, John Heinen, and as the Conjur Woman, Megan McBride, enact their chilling characterizations with rare perception.

Youthful Ellen Bergen, drawn to the mourners' bench to confess her "sin" by the hysterical church members, plays her highly dramatic scene with convincing skill. In fact all members of the cast earn highly deserved applause for the Fresno Theatre Workshop and Director Charles Randall.

We cannot resist special praise for the four witches, Delia Marie Paladino, Dee Nickels, Holly Spangenberg and Jennifer Beinfeldt—black phantoms, their flying chiffon veils, wings, as they dance around their haunted victims, to the other-world atmosphere of the play.

With music arranged with high artistry by Joe Broadman, an authority on early American folk songs, the able production staff includes Harry Leisk, stage manager, Mike Larimer, his assistant; Holly Spangenberg, scene construction; Myrtle Spangenberg, wardrobe mistress; Hanna Wershing, properties; Ludy Johnson, lighting; Delia Paladino, make-up; and Ruth Velissaratos, photography.

"Dark of the Moon" will play weekends through August 2.

Korean Statesmen Entertained Here

House guests of Professor Chung, Kyung Cho and Mrs. Chung of Carmel, following the Republican convention in San Francisco, were notable Korean officials, the Honorable Hong Ik Pyo, vice-president of the Korean democratic party and a leader of national assemblies; Honorable Ian Tong Sook, former cabinet minister and an influential national assemblyman, and Honorable Kil Chae Ho, retired general and chairman of the Home Affairs Committee of National Assembly in the Republic of Korea.

The legislative representatives from Korea had been invited by the State Department to observe the Republican convention.

Professor Chung, teacher of Korean at the Defense Language School, is widely known as the author of "Korea Tomorrow" and "New Korea."

Mrs. Helen Arnold and Mrs. Dorothy Carmalt of the World Affairs Council entertained at cocktails in their homes for the Korean visitors.

A Korean dinner party was given by Professor John Y. Rhee honoring the three government officials and Korean naval officers, students at the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School. Also present at the dinner were U.S. State Department appointed interpreters, Kim Young Ki and Chun Sung Il.

In informal addresses the visitors stressed the need for close and continued understanding between the people of the United States and Korea. They emphasized their appreciation of the great value of the work carried on by the World Affairs Council and the tireless efforts made by Mrs. Arnold and Mrs. Carmalt.

ON and OFF the AVENUES

BY CAROLYN ELSTOR

You've heard the old one about the gentleman witch who walked down Ocean Avenue . . . and turned into Sade's bar? Yes, yes I know you heard that—years ago. But, as of this day, as I walked along our avenues I saw d-r-o-v-e-s of lady witches. They were turning into SHOPS! In fact, before I could say "The ocean is further down the street madam," these witches, spike heeled and everything—turned into my favorite shops—

I was thoroughly bewitched myself, by the pastel and peaceful calm that pervaded BELLES and BEAUS, despite the fact that there were mothers, grandmothers and "little darlings" in the main room, in the anteroom and even upstairs, in the show-room that I call the sanctuary.

Owner Corinne Swalwell, through long years of experience plus understanding of the bewilderment that attacks all adults shopping for children, is an expert, not merely on sizes and styles but in coordinating wardrobes for all ages, from infancy to 14 for girls . . . 6x for boys. The hit or miss wardrobe is not only tragic to look at—you know the wrong sweater with the wrong pinafore—it is just plain extravagant! Miss Swalwell advises—harmonize—not only colors, but styles and textures and you save your money as well as your reason! In the shop that is a fairyland of play, school and party clothes and exquisite gifts you'll be pampered—and pleased as Punch!! BELLES and BEAUS—SIXTH AVENUE BETWEEN DOLORES AND LINCOLN.

From my point of view as a news scribbler, it's a bit depressing to note that the MARK FENWICK SHOP'S yearly un-advertised sale created the usual stampede of the college crowd. The racks of dresses, coats, suits and skirts that looked so trim earlier in the week are practically emaciated, the shirt and blouse wagon isn't quite empty but, if you yearn for the buys of a lifetime of top fashion casual wear—hurry! the sale ends Saturday. Lucky me! I was shown the advance Fall collection of car coats! They're dramatic!! The classic duffles have but really soared into the world of nonchalant elegance. The beloved rope toggles are still there, but leather pipings and dramatically colorful lining in giant plaids are designer signatures of colossal importance. AND, the Convoy models in soft, soft mohair and wool, come from Italy. With their elegant handcrafted silver buttons and foulard linings, they're dedicated to the jet set, and those who go junketing about—from campus, to parties, to skiing—to most anywhere. Colors? Martini, Olive, Champagne, Burgundy . . . even Vodka, you know, just off snow white. For climactic casual clothes, MARK FENWICK SHOP, CARMEL PLAZA SHOPPING CENTER.

Witches wear rose colored glasses, you bet they do—and they see to it that their bewitched husbands start the day in a glow of color! If he is showering and shaving in stark black and white—tying that tie, hunting that handkerchief in a boudoir shrouded in deep dark tones, he is definitely not looking forward to your fiftieth anniversary. Go to MARY MAY . . . You'll go a little mad, looking at her simply divine bathroom and boudoir accessories—and HE will be haunted by your cleverness! Have you tried orange and shocking pink—or hyacinth blue and violet—hand fashioned felt covered waste baskets, tissue holders, hand mirrors? There are coordinated towels (giant bath to finger tip). Deliciously alluring lingerie cases . . . luxurious poufs . . . an endless and utterly new variety of dressing table accessories. The boudoir and the bathroom have gone romantic. For ideas you've never dreamed of, visit MARY MAY'S, SOUTH-WEST CORNER, DOLORES & SIXTH.

I really thought I'd have to use voodoo to wedge myself inside the door of ROSE BROWN'S tiny shop where one dreamy eyed creature of just perfect measurements was trying on a wisp of a swim suit . . . it was but revealing! And within whispering distance another delightful creature was deciding she had to have the 4-way shift of matte jersey . . . I didn't blame her—it's versatility is something to marvel at. Neckline can p-l-u-n-g-e back or front . . . turn it inside out you can appear in a print one minute, a solid color the next. Or choose two colors—how's about apricot and shocking pink—or hex him in black versus white. Choose sleeveless or long sleeved—but for goodness sake get it! I was allowed a glimpse of fabulous Fall models—at least I saw pictures of Gino Paoli's Italian Couture Knits. Dramatic? They are breathtaking!! For individualists—not for penny-pinchers—this boutique of ultra smart fashions is your dish—ROSE BROWN, CARMEL PLAZA SHOPPING

Controversial Items On City Council's Agenda Next Week

However, Mr. Whittlesey did not want motels to increase to the extent that they might inhibit the character and growth of other businesses.

He suggested amending the zoning law to control the possibility of such an eventuality. Restricting areas where motels would be an acceptable use was his solution.

He further stated that Mr. Norberg's proposals would render existing motels nonconforming and thus create a gradual downgrading of "businesses here to stay."

These reports will be considered by the council on Wednesday, also reports on controls for the size and bulk of business structures, prepared by Mr. Norberg and Mr. Whittlesey.

Third matter affecting the appearance of the city on the council's Wednesday agenda will be a report from the lands and improvements committee on the recommendations for landscaping parking areas along Carmel streets made by the planning commission.

Time limit parking for Eighth street between San Carlos and Mission, also Fifth Street between San Carlos and Mission, and San Carlos between Fourth and Fifth will be considered.

The council will act on a request to recommend continuance of Del Monte Limited train service to the Peninsula. They will decide whether or not to establish a municipal weather station in Carmel; approve a replacement for George Walker, who has resigned, to the Monterey Peninsula Garbage and Disposal District.

Tuesday evening the council will study the 1964-65 municipal budget.

Megan's Birthday Party

Megan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald F. Criley, celebrated her sixth birthday with a gala luncheon on Saturday. The guests, all experts at pinning the hat on the clown, included party-frocked Livia Giusti and Jeanie Rainer; also Johnny Ramsay, Stewart Satchell and Cal Bordinero. Megan's big brothers, Donald and Ted, took part in the festivities, too.

Donald and Lydia Criley and their two boys returned from Europe earlier in the month. While Megan visited an aunt and uncle in Baltimore, the rest of the family with Donald's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Criley, Jr., sailed for Italy. Following a month of touring by car, Donald returned to Carmel, while Lydia and the boys went on to visit the Greek Islands.

Member of Mensa

Mrs. Donald L. Hoskin of Carmel has been accepted as a member of Mensa, the international organization whose members are all in the top two percent in intelligence.

She earned her membership through a series of tests which established her extraordinary intelligence factor. Mensa has approximately 5,000 members in 45 countries of the world. There are two members on the Peninsula. The other is Mr. George Thomson of Monterey.

Nietos' Guest

The August Nietos entertained Augie's sister, Mrs. Silvina Charlesworth, public health nurse from Fresno, over the weekend.

In San Luis Obispo

Today and tomorrow, Carmel's planning director, Floyd Adams, is attending a workshop of the Coast Counties Planning Directors Association in San Luis Obispo.

TELEPHONE DIRECTORY ERROR

The Pacific Telephone Company announces an error in its directory listing of the Carmel Fire Department's business phone. Under the Carmel-by-the-Sea section 624-3838 is listed as this business number. It should be 624-1718.

The number listed is for emergency fire calls only.

A NEW HOME — OUR PLEASURE AND PRIDE

In a new home, built for an executive family, what are the things that make the Big Difference and cause us to say this is the finest new home we have offered in several years? We believe the difference lies in the quality of the construction, the perfection of the floor plan, the use of new and interesting materials, and the care with which the millwork was finished and the house decorated. The owner built this for his own family, whose plans have suddenly changed. Now a buyer will have all the advantages of the extra quality and extra care with which this home was planned and constructed. Here are the facts:

- Approx. 4,000 sq. ft. with ocean and/or mountain views all rooms.
- 4 bedrooms, 4 baths, plus an unfinished room.
- Spacious, gracious and elegant living room with fireplace of imported white stone.
- Formal dining room with lovely Czechoslovakian crystal chandelier.
- a "House Beautiful" kitchen with furniture-finish cabinets. Separate breakfast room.
- 248 square yards of very beautiful carpeting.
- Balconies around all southeast and south exposures to take full advantage of the sunny location and exquisite views.

The price is $82,500. We would be delighted to show it to you.

Flying Carmelite Takes Aloft A Fashion Show Weighing 30 Pounds

so born. Zoe Dell had a little girl's intense admiration for Rose, a bit her senior.

At the time of the Treasure Island affair, Zoe Dell was embarked upon a theatrical career. She continued a successful, if not spectacular climb, until World War II when her interests and ambitions turned towards flying. First piloting was high adventure, eventually it became her profession.

With her license to fly as a private pilot, but not passenger planes, Zoe Dell attracted the attention of the California Council of Aviation. Her enthusiasm and splendid flying record won her a job in the public relations department of the Monarch Aviation Associates of Monterey—her function, to attract women to flying their own planes.

In Carmel, Zoe Dell found her childhood friend, Rose Brown. Together they put a unique idea into action—an airborne fashion show for fashion-conscious lady fliers! Clothes designed by Rose Brown, modelled by Zoe Dell West.

"My show is all in one suitcase," Mrs. West sparkled with enthusiasm as she explained. "The overall weight is 30 pounds. I wear an all-in-one undergarment so that I can change costumes without leaving the stage, or platform, or plane. I have eight complete outfits for two climates that will afford changes for 30 days and almost any occasion."

Requests for the "Fashions for Fun and Flying" show have come in thick and fast from all parts of the state. Mrs. West is as much, if not more, at home in the air than she is on the ground.

"I often fly to Oakland just for a few minutes off the earth and a cup of coffee," she remarked, "but, I seldom fly without 'C'est Si Bon' my black French poodle. He has his own log book, with 200 flying hours to date."

Mrs. West spends many hours at the Monterey Airport. Flying Monarch's Piper Cherokee she claims is "the greatest." On August 10, she will present her "Fashions for Fun and Flying" before the Metropolitan Oakland Pilots Association.

In the meantime, Zoe Dell lives in Carmel and her statement is firm, "Even if eventually I fly around the world, you can be sure, I'll be back. Carmel is home, and I think, I hope, that for me it always will be."

Cultural Center Moratorium Is Latest Proposal

seat hall on the Sunset site. This would result in "two unsatisfactory buildings on an area not overly large for one."

Ted Fehring, chairman of the uses subcommittee, reported that his group's assembled contributions towards putting together the cultural and community center puzzle were inclusion of the following uses: maximum parking; compatible with other uses; a branch library in fireproof surroundings to house limited circulation items; auditorium and/or festival hall; music and rehearsal rooms; arts and crafts workshops; art museum and gallery; offices for non-profit cultural organizations; community hall and small meeting rooms.

Inclusion of a fire house and police station on the Sunset site had been excluded but the subcommittee had a 5-5 deadlock vote on including the city hall and municipal administration offices in any future Sunset development, Mr. Fehring reported.

These recommendations led to considerable discussion. Mrs. W. E. van Loben Sels, in answer to questions, said a foundation would give support to a cultural center with parking. Sixty percent of the maintenance costs of many existing cultural centers are paid by parking fees. She also said that a site split into civic and cultural uses was eligible for foundation grants.

Mrs. Smith asked if the city-owned property on Junipero street, designated some years ago as a civic center site, had been abandoned. She favored this site over Sunset for civic development use.

Carvel Baldwin, who stated he represented property owners in the Twelfth and Camino Real block, wanted civic uses contained in any Sunset development. He suggested selling property the city owns elsewhere to finance the $575,000 Sunset purchase. (actually the total purchase price will be $848,445).

"Remodel Sunset and reduce the city's bonded indebtedness," he advised.

Dr. James Gilman informed the committee that, in 1961, city lands were appraised at $775,166. City Clerk Hugh Bayless said that the Carmel Board of Realtors was preparing an up-to-date appraisal at the present time and discussion on this suggestion ended.

Mrs. Dorothy Chapman was of the opinion that wording on the Sunset purchase ballot, which voters approved in May, clearly indicated municipal uses were to be included in the development of the Sunset site.

At the request of Mr. Fehring, Chairman Putnam said that he would get a legal interpretation on the wording of the ballot from the city attorney.

"Why tilt at non-existent windmills?" he commented on the question of whether or not civic use of the site was mandatory, and the ballot excluded complete cultural development of the Sunset site.

Mrs. W. E. van Loben Sels exploded the real bombshell of the evening in her finance subcommittee report.

"The finance subcommittee feels from its preliminary studies that the Sunset School project is going to be so expensive that Carmel should broaden the base of support to include the whole Peninsula. The citizens of the entire area will be using the facilities and their financial support should be solicited," was her first statement.

"Pure" research was all her subcommittee can do, she added, until work of the uses and structures subcommittees is more advanced.

Then she exploded another bombshell.

Members of the committee, she suggested, should keep in mind that any development of Sunset "is about a $1 million, and probably a $2 million project."

She concluded her report with the following facts to fit into the total puzzle picture: any services now adequately handled elsewhere should not be duplicated at Sunset; cost to the school district in 1963-64 for operating

George Beeman

George W. Beeman, 71, the father of Mrs. Howard S. Bucquet, died at his home in Atherton on July 27 after a brief illness.

Mr. Beeman founded the firm of Beauty Counselors, Inc. and was president and chairman of the board of this company for 20 years. He retired in 1949 and came from Grosse Pointe, Michi-

Sunset was $16,000; income from auditorium rental ($1,188) barely paid for extra custodial help and did not cover light and heat. Simple repairs over a five-year period can be costly, and should be kept at a minimum.

"If the school is to be kept permanently it would be a wiser approach from the financial point of view to do major remodeling immediately," her report concluded.

Chairman Putnam set August 19, 8 p.m., in city hall for the next Sunset Committee meeting.

Real progress towards solving the gigantic Sunset puzzle has already been made he indicated earlier in the evening. He predicted the committee will have "something of real substance" to present to the city council on September 15.

He was affiliated with Alpha Delta Phi fraternity; Eldorado Country Club and Shadow Mountain Club in Palm Desert; Palm Springs Tennis Club; and Palo Alto Hills Country Club. He was the founder of arts centers in Carmel and Pebble Beach.

In addition to Mrs. Bucquet, who is in Europe, he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ruby Beeman; two brothers, Stanley H. Beeman, Albany, New York, and Ellsworth R. Beeman, Atherton; two sisters, Mrs. William H. Kelly and Mrs. Mary J. Sutherland, both of Albany, New York; and four grandchildren.
